

42. What is the name of a famous English dish? If you want to learn, read the names of the ingredients from the right to the left and write the letters in the correct order. Then do some Maths tasks inside the brackets (addition and subtraction). The figures you will receive will show the letter place in the written words. Dispose four letters in colour in the first word in the title.

This dish is the main part of the British Sunday lunch, and Englishmen sometimes eat it before the main meat course.

43. Look at the roads and their crossings. Look for five letters (the greater part of the letters has circles in spelling). Compose the word, denoting the English mass unit which is equal to 0,45359237 kg. In this word the first letter is a consonant, the second and the third ones are vowels, the fourth and the fifth letters are consonants. The first and the last letters are inverted letters.

PLAYING BASKETBALL

The basketball players came to the coach to practise. 'Boys,' said the coach, 'tomorrow you'll have a game. You pass and throw the ball very badly. Now you must practise good and quick passing. Do not throw the ball into the basket now.'

The players ran up and down the room passing the ball to one another. Suddenly the ball fell into the basket. The boys stopped. 'John,' said the coach, 'you will not play here. You may go out.' After two hours of hard work, the practice was stopped. The boys came to the dressing-room. John was there. 'Ah,' said he laughing. 'What fun is there in only passing the ball? Why can't we throw the ball into the basket if we want to? Let's leave the coach and play without him. Then we can throw the ball as we like.' His friends did not know what to think. But Nick said, 'Oh, John, you remind me of a fox without a tail. Do you know that story, boys? I'll tell it to you.' 'A fox lost his tail in a trap and didn't want to appear without it. So he said to the other foxes, 'You must cut off your tails. They are so long and useless. You will see I'm right if you do the same.' But an old clever fox answered, 'I am sure, my friend, you say this only because you have lost your tail.' When the boys heard the story, they all laughed at John, and he went away ashamed.
