Reading. Read the text and answer the questions.

Mr. Little and his family lived in New York City. Mr. Little worked in an office. His wife, Mrs. Little, took care of the house. She was a kind woman and liked animals. She kept a white cat called Snowball. She also liked to play the piano. Mr. and Mrs. Little had a son called George, who went to school and liked to play ping-pong. He wanted to have a little brother very much. So once, when George went to school, Mr. and Mrs. Little went to the orphanage (сиротский приют).

There were so many wonderful children in the orphanage that the Littles didn't know what to do. Suddenly they heard a thin voice. This voice belonged to a little mouse, who told the Littles everything about every child in the orphanage. Mr. and Mrs. Little listened to him with great interest and realized they wanted to adopt the little mouse and nobody else. When George came home from school, he was disappointed to see a little mouse instead of a little brother. But very soon George and Stuart made friends.
